The flames spread rapidly, however, and it was only a short time before the heat was so intense that no one could approach the burning coaches. The cries of the dying and wounded, who saw a horrible death staring them in the face, were heartrending, but it was impossible to render them any assistance.

A number of members of the chamber of deputies were on the express train, and dispatches from them are arriving at the chamber reporting their safety, and briefly describing the fearful scenes attending the disaster.

France With the Infernal Machines.
BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Chancellor Von Caprivi and Major Ebmeyer, his ald, were received by Emperor William at the new palace at Potsdam today. Major Ebmeyer told in detail all the facts he knew in connection with the infernal machine that was sent to the chancellor. His story in all respects agreed with that told exclusively by the representative of the United Press on Monday last.

Major Ebmeyer, it will be recalled, received the package and started to open it.

Major Ebmeyer, it will be recalled, received the package and started to open it. Noticing something that resembled powder dropping as he was removing the wrappings he turned the parcel over to the police, who, after soaking it in water, made a cautious investigation and discovered that it was an infernal machine.

The emperor after listening to the story said the whole thing was the work of a mad man. He added that he in no way identified France with the attempted outrage, though the package was sent from Orleans.

Princeton Hopeful of Victory Over Yale on Thanksgiving Day.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 28, 1893.
At this season of the year two thoughts xclusively occupy the undergraduate mind. One is the approaching examinations and the other is the Yale game. The latter just now is slightly in the ascendancy owing to the fact that next Thursday the Tigers do or die; but the frequent written recitations or die; but the frequent written recitations which the faculty have seen lit to hold have acted as reminders of the dreaded mid-years, and accordingly these haunting ghosts of student life receive a far larger share of attention in college than parents and friends outside believe. The pensum system which requires extra work from system, which requires extra work from or who absent themselves too often from recitation, is successful in making the students keep at least one eye fixed on their studies. The other is contemplating the foot ball outlook

Association depends on the result of the Yale game next Thursday. There is a feeling on the campus that, barring flukes and accidents, Princeton will beat Yale and once more win the championship. If this feeling becomes fact, Yale will be unable to form a dual league with Harvard. Whether men play better together, there is more snap and the interference is finer, although the "stars" are not so many. Full back has been a weak spot since Blake's mishap in the Pennsylvania game; but within the past week he has reappeared on the field, and is getting into form once more. He may play against Yale. If he is not in condition, it is probable that Phil King will do what punting is necessary, Morse temporarily moving up to quarter. Morse, undoubtedly, will be one of the halves. He is a spientid line hitter, strong as an ox and gamey as a fighting cock. His hair is not quite as long as the unwritten rules require, but that does not prevent him from being one of the best half backs that ever wore the orange stripes. The other two vacancies are by no means settled. Ward seemed sure of one place, but an attack of "charley horse," which is similar to cramp in the muscles, has kept him out of his jersey for a week. McCauley and McCormick are the favorites for the places after Ward. All of these men have played with the 'varsity and know the team work. The sensation created by the rumor that Balliet, Princeton's center rush, had broken training and left college, owing to a personal trouble with Capt. Trenchard, has entirely subsided, and certain correspondents here are feeling somewhat foolish over the highly colored reports which they sent out. This is not the first time this year that inaccurate statements have been sent to the newspapers, and the athletic management visited their writh upon the heads of the unfortunate writers. It appears that Balliet left town for one day on business. He was back in his place the following afternoon. Whatten the contrary, he expects to graduate from the electrical school with his class. There is no ill feeling between him and his captain.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The appeal of Miss Jenny Mighell from the decision of the lower court, which held that English courts had no jurisdiction over the Sultan of Johore, was dismissed today.

Miss Mighell, who is a handsome girl, residing in Brighton, met the sultan some years ago, when he was introduced to her as the sultan promised to marry her. THE TIGER'S CHANCES. ANOTHER FINE GAME

To Be Played at Annapolis Next Saturday.

THE MIDDIES AND THE POINTERS

How the Two Teams Will Probably Line Up.

THE CHANCES ARE EVEN.

There are probably no two other schools in America where the students come from as many sections of our great country as the Military Academy at West Point and the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

In the fall of 1890 the naval cadets at Annapolis had an exceptionally good foot ball team and the game had been established there for many years, though the time given to practice was very limited, owing to the strict course of study and drill. The team arranged a game with the West Pointers, then just launching into the foot ball field as an established team, and the Secretary of the Navy allowed the "Mid-dies" to go up to West Point and roll up the handsome score of 32 to 0 against the "Pointers." In 1891 the Secretary of War returned the compliment by allowing the

From this time these yearly championship deep interest on the game played on the Saturday after Thanksgiving day. Last Saturday after Thanksgiving day. Last year the teams were well coached, West Point by Hallowell of Harvard fame and the "Middles" by the late Mr. Crosby, formerly of the great Yale team. The "Middles" went into the game handicapped by several pounds of extra weight of the "Pointers," but after one of the finest games of the season, the "Middles" again won, by a score of 12 to 6.

This Year's Teams. year the teams have been well ch at both schools and on Saturday, the 2d of December, they will battle for the prize of victory at the Navai Academy. Every spare moment at the Point has been given to hard practice by the team, under the coaching of the famous captain of last year's Yale team, Laurie Bliss, and though year's Yale team, Laurie Bilss, and though they say but little, they seem to feel confident of victory. Even at this late date it does not seem to be fully decided exactly who will play on the West Point team in the big game, but barring accidents, it is fair to presume that the team will line up against the "Middles" as follows:

Center—T. L. Ames, '95.

Right guard—Heidt, '97.

Right tackle—Aultman, '94.

Quarter back—Stout, '96.

Full back—King,

ley. '97; quarter baca, School 197; quarter baca, School 198.
Capt. Carson, who is to play left half back, played in last year's game. He is adjutant of his class and very popular with officers and cadets, but many of them will say confidentially that he is the poorest half arm and these same ones the the floware, and it is the interaction of the sign.

team and is a game in himself, but his sprained ankle has kept him out of much of the late practice. This is his third year on the team. The other half back, Davidson, is a new man, but training has brought out ingenuity and grit in him to make his strength available. Ward, Marshall and Karns are also on their first year, but play like veterans, while Reeves, the left tackle, plays with the experience of three years to back him.

It is hard to draw the line between the team and the substitutes as to good playing, for Breckenridge (who is a son of Inspector General Breckenridge of the army) is as good as the chosen ends, and Gelm's only fault is a little slowness, while Fullenwider has been most efficiently coached, and though they themselves are not over confident of success, the rank and file of the followers are enthusiastic. The middles' best work against the big teams this season was to hold the University of Pennsylvania down to 12 points and to score 8 to Lehigh's 12, while the West Pointers could not score against Lehigh, though they held Lehigh dewn to 18 points. But the best thing in favor of the Pointers is their score a week ago of 4 to the Princeton Tigers' 16, which is an excellent recommendation.

S. N. A., Sis! Boom! Bah!" or sport the "gold and gray" of the army's pets and answer it back with "Ra, ra, rah, West Point, West Point, ra, ra, rah!" All the bets on the game at the Army and Navy Club so far are even and light, though the army officers started to give odds when the Pointers scored against Princeton.

THE WILD MAN OF ROCKAWAY.

He Has Thrown the Community Into a State of Excitement. The following was printed in the New York Herald this morning: The community of Rockaway Beach has been thrown into a state of excitement by a wild man, large of stature, weird in appear-ance, with fierce, blood-shot eyes, long, flowing, natted hair and a shaggy beard. Nothing else is being taiked about in Rockaway. This strange being has already Rockaway. This strange being has airendy assaulted persons of both sexes, dashed headlong through closed windows and generally scared everybody in the neighborhood clear out of their wits.

His present supposed habitat is somewhere among the sand dunes of Block House Point. His diet consists of raw clams, found along the beach, and raw chickens, the result of his raids among the neighboring poultry yards.

The school children of Rockaway are in mortal dread, too, because a wretch told one of them that the "bogey man" had aiready eaten six little boys and girls. The wild man was first seen about a week ago by "Red" McDowell and George Farreil, who were rowing about Rockaway inlet one morning lcoking for stray piles. As their boat neared the shore a terrible looking creature came rushing down to the beach, the men rowed out of harm's way in short order.

close to the water's edge, at the candidate of the point. This is about six miles south of Rockaway proper.

The place is bleak and desolate in the extreme, consisting as it does of barre, each dunes, and here and there, patches of the card dunes, and here and there are the same different as the result of the same dunes.
